Regulatory changes and aggressive M&A activity have put added pressure on the corporate tax function. And for many companies, the resources required to handle tax operations are scarce.

This is where Global Tax Management (GTM) brings value. A national leader in corporate tax services, GTM works with mid-size and large multinational companies to improve their processes, with expertise in income tax accounting and compliance, state and local tax, international tax, indirect tax, tax automation, tax incentives, and transfer pricing.

“We provide the right tax technical resources at the right time to scale with the client’s exact needs,” says John Diamond, managing director of the firm’s New York Metro office. “Our goal is to bring our clients long-term business continuity and short-term flexibility to manage tax operations effectively as their business evolves.”

A PRACTICAL APPROACH

GTM’s services are delivered in a variety of ways, whether it’s taking a lead role, a supporting role, or a combination of the two based on the client’s needs and business environment. The firm often comes in when companies need to outsource their entire tax department or need to collaborate directly with a co-sourcing partner that brings a flexible, scalable approach.

Regardless of the delivery method, GTM helps, for example, companies in the midst of implementing new tax legislation and other reporting requirements. “We are able to bridge the gap between complex tax rules and the day-to-day reporting that is required. The tax function is complicated and we are there to make it more manageable,” Diamond explains.

GTM also helps companies build and optimize automated processes that make wrangling, consolidating, and reporting tax data more accurate and efficient, illustrating its effort to offer sustainable tax automation solutions that clients can adopt and maintain. “We deliver turnkey solutions to the client,” says Diamond, “so our clients get best-in-class processes for their continued use in-house.”

“Our goal is to bring our clients long-term business continuity and short-term flexibility to manage tax operations effectively as their business evolves.”

AN EXTENSION OF THE TEAM

With significant growth of the firm’s client base over the last few years, the market is quickly embracing GTM’s business model. As a 100% employee-owned company, GTM’s low turnover and hands-on approach to client service at the executive level offers consistency and continuity between each client and their service team.

“Clients view us like any other internal team member,” Diamond says. “They trust that we have their best interest in mind and will help them in any capacity for the long term.”
